New Coaching Client Agreement

Our complimentary session established you are ready to be coached, demonstrating a mutual wish to work with one another. However, both parties must bring complete clarity and understanding to create a safe space connection.

Basic Shared Agreements

- When entering this specific professional client/coach relationship agreement, it's imperative to acknowledge that a life coach's job isn't to work on the emotional well-being or wounds from the past—that is the job of a professional psychotherapist or counselor for mental health care. Instead, the life coach's role focuses on where you are now to move forward and bring clarity and awareness to your personal goals. I bring complete empathy and honor to you without judgments and believe all your answers exist within yourself. Therefore, we will work on getting to those answers while focusing on your authentic you.
- Each session is one hour long and takes place via Skype, Google Meet, or phone. Skype and Google Meet can be done with or without live video, whichever you prefer most. Any long-distance phone charges are the client's entire financial responsibility, not the coach's. Also, all sessions are to be paid in full within 24 hours before your first scheduled session and are non-refundable. Payments are accepted via check, credit card, or PayPal.
- Committing to at least two monthly sessions every other week is recommended for those purchasing coaching packages. This commitment establishes a consistency that can distinguish goals. Sessions may also be spaced out and scheduled however you desire. You may purchase additional sessions or packages appropriate for your preferred time frame. You decide what works best for you.
- Our scheduled time is valuable, demonstrating a secure client/coach relationship with a mutual agreement of showing up to all sessions on time with no distractions. A coaching session in a public venue with background noise does not symbolize a comfortable, productive environment.
- Any rescheduling requires a 48-hour minimum notice. I understand emergencies sometimes arise; therefore, only one missed session with notification will be granted a free pass. Your session must be forfeited if any further cancellation/rescheduling occurs outside the 48-hour policy. If this happens more than two times (after the granted free pass), a $25.00 cancellation fee will occur. This fee is part of your motivational self-value to keep you on a consistent path towards enlightenment. Cancellations or rescheduling requests can only be made via e-mail, text, or phone.

- For mutual respect, any session missed without notice or warning will be forfeited. This absence is not included as a granted free pass and will automatically result in a $25.00 fee for the client to continue their program. If this happens twice, we will review whether or not coaching is suitable for you at this time.
- All clients currently working with a package program may have "relapse moments" (i.e., having difficulty deciding on something, etc.). Therefore, non-lengthy but not too minimal e-mails are welcomed outside our scheduled sessions. You will receive an appropriate feedback response ASAP. Depending on availability, we can schedule an uncharged 10-minute chat without or instant message.
- Everything covered in our client/coach relationship is to remain strictly confidential unless the client shows an indication of harming others or themselves. If a client is currently attending counseling from a professional psychotherapist, please continue that process along with coaching. I welcome all clients to be open and honest with their coaching process and communicate what works best for them. Our time together is all about uplifting and opening yourself to greater possibilities because it's now your life!

I have carefully read each shared agreement with complete understanding and will honor them during our coaching relationship.

If you felt a safe space trusting connection with your coach, what would you tell them about collaborating with you most effectively? What kind of tips would you give them?
Are you currently following a method of religion or spiritual practice? If so, what would it be?
Are you currently involved in an exercise program?
Are you currently getting enough sleep?
What is the greatest thing you would like to gain from this coaching experience?
What would you like to focus on during your first coaching session (if you intend to proceed, etc.)
Is there anything else you feel necessary to share about yourself?

Take a moment and congratulate yourself on completing this revealing process.

Statement of Intent

All coaching practices with Eric Casaccio are meant to thrive, challenge, uplift, and focus on where you are today and move you forward. During this journey, healing may certainly occur, symbolizing psychological support; however, it is imperative to reiterate that coaching is not psychotherapy. If you are feeling symptoms of stress, anxiety, depression, inability to function, or thoughts of suicide, please seek the guidance of a professional psychotherapist. The life coaching process may enhance your situation with your therapy. Still, the work of a coach is not to work on your past emotional wounds; instead, focus on bringing clarity and awareness to your authentic road of personal empowerment in the now. With complete understanding, please read the following statements, and should you agree to each account and desire to proceed, sign below:

- I am healthy and responsible enough to engage in life coaching services received with Eric Casaccio at Now Your Life.
- I understand that all life coaching services at Now Your Life are not a substitute for counseling, psychotherapy, mental health, or other medical assistance.
- I accept my coach is not a psychotherapist, counselor, psychologist, mental health, or medical care provider. However, suppose I believe I have a psychological or medical condition. In that case, I advise myself to seek qualified professional care from a licensed psychotherapist, counselor, or appropriate medical care provider to maintain myself as a healthy, responsible person able to engage in coaching.
- I understand that Now Your Life will maintain strict confidentiality with the information shared in coaching.
- I understand my confidential information can be shared with my written consent or if a court judge demands it. However, I also know that if I exhibit signs of harming, abusing, killing others, or harming myself, my coach is legally obligated to break our confidentiality agreement without my permission.
- I understand that my full and honest participation in life coaching is required and that I am responsible for showing up to my scheduled sessions on time.
- I understand and accept that life coaching is a process of personal empowerment.
- I understand and accept that any results or outcomes cannot be guaranteed.
- I understand that signing this statement applies to any coaching sessions and packages I may purchase now or in the future from Eric Casaccio of Now Your Life.

I have carefully read the statement of intent above with complete understanding and agree with all points contained therein:
